Mt. Hood Fusion Pass: Two Winter Resorts – One Low Price for the Longest Season on the Mountain

The Mt. Hood Fusion Pass offers skiers and riders an unlimited pass to both Skibowl and Timberline ski areas. Snowriders can buy online at www.MtHoodFusionPass.com

(Government Camp, OR, September 22, 2009)– With winter sports coming on fast, the best value for season lift tickets is now available once again. The highly popular Mt. Hood Fusion Pass provides a single season pass for both Skibowl and Timberline that is valid all days and all nights, from October 2009 through Memorial Day, 2010.

Mt. Hood Fusion Pass holders have the ultimate ticket to a bountiful 5,000 vertical feet and over 2,500 ski-able acres of terrain across over 100 runs and 14 chairlifts between Skibowl and Timberline. Combined, the two areas are open every day between opening day and Memorial Day, weather permitting, providing more terrain and more options for area snow-riders.

Mt. Hood Fusion Passes are the best value for snow-riders and are available to a single individual of any age.

Purchased now through October 31, Mt. Hood Fusion Passes are priced at just $249 for Youth (age 7-14) and Seniors (age 65-70); only $349 for Young Adult (age 15-22) and $449 for Adult Passes (age 23-64).

The Mt. Hood Fusion Pass is currently on sale at www.MtHoodFusionPass.com. For details, visit the website, call Skibowl at 503-222-BOWL or Timberline at 503-622-7979. They can also be purchased at Portland area REI stores.

“This pass offers people the best of both worlds,” says Kirk Hanna, owner of Mt. Hood Skibowl and Collins Lake Resort in Government Camp. “If it’s snowing at Government Camp, come to Skibowl, for the steepest powder runs on the mountain and with Timberline right around the corner, the best conditions and best terrain parks are all within reach.”

Jon Tullis, marketing director at Timberline added, “This pass offers snowriders more options, including added terrain and new lifts. This is the best bang for the buck - two great ski areas for one low price.”
